

Linked Learning Resources

WEBSITE	DESCRIPTION	INTENDED USE	GRADE/ SUBJECTS
LINKED LEARNING ALLIANCE	The Linked Learning Alliance site provides an overview of Linked Learning, including informative factsheets and videos of Linked Learning in action.	Information on the site is intended to help educators, employers, policymakers, parents, and students learn about Linked Learning.	High School
	http://www.linkedlearning.org/
THE JAMES IRVINE FOUNDATION	A Linked Learning page on the Foundation’s site describes the purpose and approach of Linked Learning. A visual summary provides a snapshot of activities and findings from the most recent year. Included are videos in which individuals share their insights and experiences.	This site provides an overview of Linked Learning for school personnel, business partners, policymakers, as well as the public at large.	High School https://www.irvine.org/linked-learning
CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY	A CSU Linked Learning Community site is rich with information and resources. Of particular note is information about the alignment between Linked Learning and the CCSS-ELA/Literacy, CCSS-M, and NGSS.	The site provides an online meeting place for CSU faculty and educators across California to strengthen educational pathways and implement new ways to give students practical work-based skills.	High School IHE
	http://teachingcommons.cdl.edu/linkedlearning/resources_websites/documents/HandbookforLLClinicalTeacherPreparation.pdf
	A Handbook for Linked Learning Clinical Teacher Preparation (Grenot-Scheyer & Stallones) describes the benefits and challenges of implementing Linked	The Handbook serves as a guide for schools and universities seeking to collaborate on Linked Learning	High School IHE

	Learning partnerships and projects.	projects.
	http://teachingcommons.cdl.edu/linkedlearning/new_standards/index.html
STANFORD CENTER FOR OPPORTUNITY POLICY IN EDUCATION (SCOPE)	A knowledge brief from SCOPE discusses how Linked Learning is a promising vehicle for implementation of the CCSS. Four ways in which Linked Learning and the CCSS are mutually supportive of each other are described.	The brief was developed for practitioners, administrators, parents, policymakers and others.	High School
	https://edpolicy.stanford.edu/publications/pubs/661
THE EDUCATION TREST—WEST	A policy document from The Education Trust—West highlights how new California Standards come to life through Linked Learning.	This document supports readers’ understanding of the relationship between Linked Learning and the CCSS and provides examples and recommendations for implementation.	High School
	http://west.edtrust.org/wp-content/uploads/sites/3/2015/02/Linked-Learning-Report-FINAL.pdf
ConnectEd CALIFORNIA	This website provides a great deal of information about Linked Learning and includes resources (videos, publications, events), ideas, and curricula.	ConnectEd provides services that helps district teams build high-quality Linked Learning pathways.	High School
	www.connectedcalifornia.org
ALLIANCE FOR EXCELLENT EDUCATION	The Alliance for Education works to promote high school transformation so that every student graduates prepared for postsecondary learning and success in life. It is a leader in the Linked Learning movement and its website provides many resources	Anyone interested in Linked Learning will find information of value on this site, including data on student achievement and high school and college graduation rates.	High School on Linked Learning and other related projects.

www.all4ed.org